PARLIAMENT.

LONDON, Aug. 29.—The House of Commons continued to remain all night in session. This being the Government's intention. The Irish members were very active throughout the night, and took occasion to the merits of the Bills to grant new municipal government to Liverpool and Manchester, the Metropolitan Police Bill, and the Incumbents of Birmingham. The Irish members also talked out a number of private bills.

PERSONAL.

Lord Randolph Churchill, Chancellor of the Exchequer, stated to the House of Commons that the Government of India had asked the Secretary of State for India to give an explanation in regard to the attention from Simla, and also news of a further fall, amounting to 1 cent, and also the price of silver.

A REPLY TO THE PEOPLE.

LISBON, Aug. 29.—A reply has been made to the last, departed to a portion of the garrison of Lisbon and Oporto, with full arms, to make a demonstration in the streets and enforce the order of the authorities. The troops were not enthusiastic, and the people were hooted at the demonstration. The troops were then ordered to their quarters. This is the first time that a demonstration has been made against the Government.

AMERICAN CATTLE.

LONDON, Aug. 29.—In the House of Commons to-day Mr. Chaplin, replying to a question, said that the Government had received a report from Mr. Dodge, stating that the Government of the United States had taken every precaution to prevent the importation of diseased cattle from Europe. It is impossible for Great Britain to adopt more stringent measures than those now in force in the United States. Mr. Chaplin said that the Government had also been informed that there was no ground for the opinion that disease existed among cattle imported into the United States, and that it appears to the authorities that the cattle were being properly inspected. Mr. Chaplin, with some show of warmth, added that the Government would not be satisfied with the statements of the United States Government, but would send their own inspectors to [Illegible] the Passenger Service West from Michigan—Advance in Rates Between Buffalo and Chicago.

From the gentlemen who attended the meeting of General Passenger Agents held in Buffalo Wednesday it is learned that it was there referred to the Eastern from Buffalo to Western points. There were present: J. H. Ashley, New York Central; Buffalo; A. S. Clark, Erie; Clark, Pennsylvania; H. C. Ashley, Lake Shore; William Fraser, Grand Trunk; J. C. Wetmore, Michigan Central; D. T. Jones, Lake Erie & Western; and C. P. Farnum, Buffalo and Susquehanna. Mr. Fraser acted as secretary. The object which the Grand Trunk and Lake Shore lines have in view is to secure the passage of the Grand Trunk from Detroit to Buffalo and through the Lake Shore to Chicago, and to secure a share of the business of the Michigan Central. [illegible] to allow the Grand Trunk additional rates, which would [illegible] to the disadvantage of the Michigan Central. It was also decided that the Grand Trunk should be allowed to [illegible] Chicago and Detroit to Buffalo, and that the Lake Shore should be allowed to [illegible] Buffalo to Detroit and Chicago [illegible] the Grand Trunk and Michigan Central at Detroit.

It was decided to allow the Grand Trunk additional rates, which would [illegible] to the disadvantage of the Grand Trunk, [illegible] to allow the Grand Trunk to [illegible] Buffalo to Detroit and Chicago [illegible] Lake Shore and Michigan Central at Detroit.

The Grand Trunk has [illegible] to allow the Lake Shore additional rates, which would [illegible] to the disadvantage of the Grand Trunk, [illegible] to allow the Grand Trunk to [illegible] Buffalo to Detroit and Chicago [illegible] Lake Shore and Michigan Central at Detroit. [illegible] to allow the Grand Trunk to [illegible] Buffalo to Detroit and Chicago [illegible] Lake Shore and Michigan Central at Detroit.

The Grand Trunk has [illegible] to allow the Lake Shore additional rates, which would [illegible] to the disadvantage of the Grand Trunk,

An Heiress Girl's Marriage to a British Nobleman—Notes and Gossip of Various Kinds.

London, July 31.—[Special Correspondence.]—Is London in or out of town, or is she permanently out? London is? This is certainly the one season of the year when an answer cannot be returned to that question. The city is deserted by Londoners. The latest are still with Americans, for on the 20th inst. the Duke of Devonshire will entertain the Prince of Wales at Lismore castle, and the whole Londonward movement will be delayed for a week. Why is this? Is the season London a dull one? Is everybody out of town? Is the world [illegible] to the west of Temple bar? Is one of the most interesting exhibits, though, of course, inferiority to a certain of Londoners. But who do not Americans see when visiting London? London is to be met? Londoners themselves complain bitterly of the fact that nobody is left in town after the end of September. Indeed, the only months when London is supposed to be really interesting and charming are those of spring and the early summer.

I have mentioned in former years how few Americans there were left in London by the end of July, that most of the Londoners, usually in Paris, and then return to London to the shooting season, just before settling for the winter. This year, however, has been exceptional in this respect, and more Americans have been in London during the whole of the season than ever before. But where do Londoners go for the enforcement? Everywhere, for they scatter. All the other seasons of the year are fixed as the recognized times of the different sports and pastimes of the year.

[illegible]

One of the great events during the month of August is the opening of Ascot race-course. That usually leads to the opening of the fashionable week of that. The aristocracy and magnificence go to the Derby meeting, but, perhaps, less fashionable. The aristocratic host is changed from race to race. The other week most of the aristocracy were at Cowes, at the Isle of Wight, the Prince of Wales's yacht anchoring there. Then there was a week at Goodwood with racing, shooting and [illegible] as it was also with all English gentlemen, to run simultaneously both the French and the Irish Derbies. Next English families go to the north to the Scotch moors.

Everyone, even more pressed to say that he or she Londonizes out just now in the fashionable centers in Germany and Switzerland, and all are at the very fashionable resorts on the north of France. Trouville is just now in the zenith of its fashion. Deauville, on the opposite [illegible] bank of the Seine, is also very fashionable, but Trouville is the more [illegible] of the two. Dieppe is also very fashionable, but Trouville is the more [illegible] of the two. Dieppe is also very fashionable, but Trouville is the more [illegible] of the two.

Louisville (Ky.) Letter to Philadelphia Times.—Gen. Dan Mace, Robert's watchdog in Congress, the Democratic candidate for Governor, is very interesting his record in connection with the writer. Gen. Mace, of Louisville, was a great favorite for the Republican nomination, in the anticipation that he would be elected. When the Democratic convention met in Louisville, Gen. Mace was a delegate to it, and was [illegible] to the convention. Written for the Chicago Tribune.

"Well, Caldwell, now that it's all over, what are you going to do?"

"I don't know; that's the question! If the Equitable were a baker I'm positive, there would be three millionaires in the world."

"Bad business, this conviction. I shall be in the army as sky man to work a balloon."

The speaker was a tall, handsome man of thirty-odd years, though for the unwonted fullness of angry wrinkles here and there upon his fair, complexion-worthy visage, you would have pronounced that he was much older.

He stands but second to Alvin Caldwell as a man as clean and virile as a mountain; but long association almost had made that the subject had a more even proportion, while almost every one of the former type, and a certain dignified ease completed the charm of a face which the beauty of a single one of those features would have sufficiently explained with extraordinary completeness. The two were also as a certain class of business men would have contrasted as a horse to rattle Count to a quarter mile, for this admirable was a necessity to his business temperament, and just about such service as water a hard road running much counter also to good strength. His constitution right that hand, was capacity for control to persuade hands, and general equableness. The man a fine spirit as a certain class of business
